Abstract:

The study aims to (1) review the literature that analyses the history and current situation of Higher Education in Turkey and to review the Higher Education agenda (e.g. goals) of the government (2) to identify and discuss the issues related to Higher Education system in Turkey and (3) to make suggestions regarding the issues in Turkish Higher Education with regard to the discussion in the first and second purposes above. Multiple sources of information are used in methodology: (1) documents on the agenda of Turkey with regard to the objectives of Higher Education, (2) the findings of previous studies undertaken on different aspects of Turkish Higher Education system (3) documents prepared by organizations such as YÖK (Turkish Higher Education Council), MEB (Turkish Ministry of National Education) and World Bank. The analysis of the literature and the agenda of the government suggest that Turkey aims to upgrade the Higher Education system in line with its goals of becoming a more powerful player in the world. In the findings, the strengths of the system is given and then, some suggestions which aims at improving some aspects of the system are mentioned. In this way, this study not only describes and makes some suggestions for the Higher Education system in Turkey, but it also provides a case which can be used by the researchers studying Higher Education in different contexts, especially for the other developing countries such as Malaysia.
